HOW TO GET FROM BEING AN OVERWHELMED NOBODY TO BECOMING AN INSPIRING IN-DEMAND EXPERT..... WITHOUT COMPROMISING ON WHO YOU ARE

Show your full identity

Do you feel like being behind, and not fully seen at work? Are you worried of what your co-workers think of you? Have you lost your identity, your sense of self?

#1

Follow this exercise about going all in on YOU, and becoming your own authority.

Step 1: Write down all your identities on a piece of paper - the ones you like and the ones you don't like. Allow them to be, appraise them, and don't judge any of them.

Step 2: Decide to truly own all your identities, and stop hiding.

Step 3: Be curious about the identities surrounding you. Ask others who they are, and explore the diverse world.

#2

Allow yourself to have different perspectives

If you are self-aware and have your back, you also have the strength to have different views on things. Creativity requires diverse perspectives or ideas. So, bring forward new ideas and benefit from it.

#3

Find your niche

Is there any area that you are particularly interested in? Carve out that niche and make a name for yourself in it. This makes you indispensable at work, and you have more fun, too.

Do it differently

No matter what profession you are in, there are always processes that can be optimized. When you find smarter, more efficient ways to get work done, people will notice.

#4

Ask yourself the following questions in everything you do:

- "How could this be more simple?"
- "How could I do the same task in less time?"
- "Does it even make sense the way I'm doing it?"
- "What bothers me about this task?"
- "How can I make my work easier?"

Come up with something new!

#5

Overdeliver

Deliver more quality than expected. Once you've found a niche for yourself, it's no longer difficult to come up with unique ideas and perform beyond expectations.

Make a plan for each day

If you create value, people will follow you.

Plan the value you want to create. You need to set goals and plan how to get it done. So each morning, it should be clear what results you want to achieve that day and why you want to achieve these results. This makes your life so much easier, creates structure, saves time, and creates verifiable results you will benefit from.

#6

Answer for yourself following questions:

- Who do I need to be, in order to create result XYZ.
- How do I need to feel?
- How do I need to show up?

Create your successful day! It's on you.

#7

Learn to fail forward

Failure is part of the journey.

Everyone makes mistakes! But that is not nearly as important as what you do about failures and even more important what you make them mean. So instead judging yourself or others, instead of beating yourself up, take the lessons learned, filter criticism for insights, forget the rest, and move on.
